

Preface

It was late at night, probably 3 AM. I was 7.
My father raped me. I enjoyed it...

Long story short

I was always a shy kid. I think i was too introverted for my own good. Kids used to take advantage of me. They used to emasculate me. At first i felt harassed. Then i started enjoying it. That is how i became a feminine person inside a male body. I felt like i was born in a wrong body. I hate pain, so i decided to not have a gender reassignment surgery. My mother encouraged me to wear her panties. She was a nasty perverted bitch. She coerced my dad into filming him fucking me. I think this is classified under pedophilia, but alas — both of them are dead.

I won't go into details, but it was bloody. My asshole was torn apart. White puss effused out of my asshole, and it was just not semen!

In a way i am grateful to my dad; he introduced me to the hidden world of gay sexual pleasure. I spent the next 50 years of my life indulging in various forms of degeneracy. This is how i acquired HIV then AIDS. I am old and dying as i type this. Canadians pretend to be progressive and liberal — they aren't.

So i hid my homosexuality from the rest of the world until now. I am a proud fag, dying, in pain, but i am proud of myself. As soon as my workplace found that i was gay, they fired me. I looked for work elsewhere; there is no work for the gays — Canada is homophobic and ageist!

I tried to get married to a beautiful lady and pretend to have a normal life; They are all bitches. Canadian women are the most selfish cunts in the entire planet. Do not marry a Canadian woman! She will ass rape you financially and mentally.

I hope for a future when USA invades and annexes Canada and makes it a liberal paradise such as in San Francisco! I love San Fran! I went there and i had hundreds of men willing to cream-pie my asshole; i am 60.

When i grew up in Ottawa, the scary winter ride was constant — life in Canada is always bleak; Canada is perpetual hell winter!

I went to meet Stephen King down there in Maine once, and he proceeded to have sex with me. Yes, he is gay. Oops! Isn't that obvious? Just look at him!

I would also like to reveal to the readers that most of the celebrities are literal homos. I found myself once in a gay orgy where Tom Cruise and John Travolta were tongue-kissing each other. I will never forgive them for not getting me to join them into a ménage à trois with them. They both have the AIDS. Damn them to hell.

Suffice it is to say that the world we live in is a world full of bullshit and lies. All the lies the MSM media tells us, and all of us gobble it like faggots eating each other's shit-icecreams coming out of their asses.

Donald Trump and Hillary? They both have had sex many times. The future of the corrupt American politics is Clinton family vs Trump family, and they are both family friends!

I am thinking of committing suicide, but i enjoy typing. I enjoy browsing the internet. I enjoy the fact that the blood coming out of my asshole is due to my father fucking me up the ass. Had he not raped me, my life might have been a bit different. Oh wait, i am ugly as hell for the superficial women of this world so i had no chance.

Killing my parents

I killed my mom. I killed my dad. They deserved it. They were asking for it. No one will ever know. I will be dead by the time this book is ever published, or revealed to the general public. So i think i am safe. I killed them 40 years ago. I am happy that i did what i did. Life got better once they were out of my life. Just do it kids. Kill your parents! Be free from their evil fascist control over your lives.

I won't reveal much details as to how i did it; they "accidentally" drowned...

How to survive in Homophobic Ageist Canada

It's not that hard to survive in this god forsaken freezer. Just offer lonely men your orifices for them to un-pressurize their piss-utensils. Offer them sex for food, drinks, money, lodging, et seq.

It gets harder when you are older. No one gives a shit about your existence. So you have to do dumpster diving, living in the underground supermarkets, moving around. It was fun when i was younger. Now it is very hard. I am typing this while inside a bathroom. I won't reveal the location because it's illegal and i might get thrown out. I suck their dicks regularly for them to let me be here, and sometimes they give me something to eat. I also use toilet papers to collect the blood and pus around my asshole and enjoy it as raw delicacy.

When you consider Canada, you may think they have everything dealt with.

They have had same-sex marriage across the nation for about 10 years, hostile to segregation laws for a mind boggling 14 years and is regularly portrayed as one of the best places to be LGBTQIA on the planet.

Homophobia in schools is on the ascent, and there are the individuals who need the privileges of trans individuals to be stripped. We addressed Kennedy to discover more:

How is the size of homophobia in Canada?

In 2016, the measurements uncovered that detest wrongdoings spurred by sexual introduction expanded by 10%, which speaks to 18% of all the detest violations.

We likewise realize that the despise wrongdoings propelled by sexual introduction are the most fierce of any of the detest violations that happen in Canada.

How does this contrast with different nations?

Individuals surmise that being gay in Canada is all ruddy, and contrasted with a few locales, it is, however not for everyone – in case you're two-soul, dark or darker, you have enormous issues and issues, a similar way you have in the UK – there are a great deal of similitudes between the UK and Canada.

What is the level of this homophobia in your schools?

Regarding training through our educational system, our LGBTQI2S (lesbian, gay, androgynous, transgender, intersex, eccentric and two-spirits) youngsters confront elevated amounts of segregation in school.

We did an overview of secondary schools in Canada and 70% of taking an interest understudies detailed hearing homophobic remarks each day and 74% of trans individuals had been verbally pestered about their sexual orientation articulation.

One of every five (11%) of the LGBTQ understudies detailed being physically annoyed or struck as a result of their apparent sexual introduction or sex personality.

What should be possible to diminish homophobia in schools?

There should be more prominent mindfulness, regardless of whether it be through the school direction advisor or through the social laborers.

We have to accomplish more mindfulness for guardians, we have to do more prominent instruction in the matter of what our LGBTIQ2S kids are experiencing in school once a day, and research into the degree of homophobic tormenting.

We should be significantly more proactive in changing educational programs so our LGBTQ children can see themselves and their families reflected in their learning.

Why is this essential?

School would turn into significantly all the more inviting spot for our childhood, and you need to recall that much of the time, the young might be encountering homophobia at home, and once in a while school is the main place where they can go for a respite.

So on the off chance that they're not understanding that sheltered space made in school, and they're not getting it at home, where are they going to go?

We've talked a considerable measure about homophobia in schools, yet where else do you see elevated amounts of separation?

It's still extremely common for grown-ups in their expert lives; you know, questions asked are; is it safe to turn out at work? What is the reaction going to be? In the event that you take a gander at our seniors, they are confronting issues around homophobia in long haul mind offices in their grown-up years.

You discuss homophobia somewhere else, so how acknowledged are LGBTQIA individuals in the general group?

When we were in the stature of marriage, there were high rates of acknowledgment for same-sex marriage in Canada.

Presently, there is that demeanor 'Goodness well, we gave them marriage, now what do they need?' There's that absence of genuine comprehension by the overall public of what it really intends to be LGBTQIA in a general public where you're still on the periphery regardless you're underestimated.

Be that as it may, we have a ton of work to do, and you can't gauge LGBTQIA uniformity rights in light of marriage enactment.

What's more, shouldn't something be said about trans individuals, what amount of acknowledgment would they say they are given?

In Canada today, despite everything we don't have assurance for trans individuals under the human rights code or through the criminal code.

Trans individuals don't approach social insurance, and they are monetarily impeded. The truths are far not quite the same as the enactment we as of now have [to secure trans people].

Is it hard to turn out in Canada?

Yes – however this could be enhanced through changes in the instruction framework, to having more good examples turned out in governmental issues for instance, making it more adequate. You can depend on one hand what number of lawmakers on government level are in reality out.

What does Canada plan to do?

Regardless we have to change the entire culture around acknowledgment of LGBTQIA individuals. We are working with coroner's to build up whether being eccentric is a contributing variable to youth suicide and looking into levels of homophobia in different territories of our country.

Mélanie Doucet went to Montreal's outside global music celebration, Osheaga, five years consecutively. Be that as it may, in the fifth year, a startling knowledge made it distinctive.

In 2016, she says her drink was spiked with a medication amid a Red Hot Chili Peppers show. She'd lost her companions in the group and she passed out.

It was something she had encountered in a bar when she was more youthful and she perceived the signs: her discourse was slurred, her vision begun to go and she lost control of her body.

She knew she needed to escape the celebration as quick as would be prudent. Osheaga gauges 135,000 individuals went to the celebration on the end of the week Doucet was there. The Red Hot Chili Peppers were the day's main event and the territory was pressed.

"I passed out on and off while I was attempting to get out of the group and I was genuinely near the front so it required me a long investment to get out," Doucet said in a meeting with National Observer.

"It was very alarming, I needed to lock on to individuals since I couldn't control my body any longer and I was twisting around in reverse and I couldn't walk straight and I was unmistakably in trouble and nobody would help me. They continued getting over me or taking a gander at me in sicken."

She thought somebody close-by had spiked her drink with the medication keeping in mind the end goal to assault her.

"I know how it goes, generally they hold up until you're in a power outage state and after that they imagine they're your companion and assume you to a position where they can sexually strike you. So I had the nature to leave, to attempt to escape the circumstance," she said.

Nobody offered to help her, Doucet said. Be that as it may, she fortunately figured out how to get out all alone, making it back to her beau's home in the wake of taking the metro and calling him for offer assistance.

After Mélanie Doucet was medicated at a music celebration and a security official declined to help her, she began a request of requiring the City of Montreal to make swarmed open occasions, similar to celebrations, more secure for ladies. Video by Clothilde Goujard

The following day, she attempted to alarm Osheaga security staff. Be that as it may, she was stunned by their response.

"I solicited to address the chief from security at the door and she completely got over me," Doucet said.

"She just stated, 'Goodness I'm truly occupied, I don't have time for this, too bad this transpired however perhaps you ought to have watched your drink,'" Doucet said. "What's more, I quite recently sort of was in stun that a lady above all else would react to me that way and afterward a chief of security of a huge universal celebration would react to me that way."

Subsequent to posting on Osheaga's Facebook page about the occurrence and getting no reaction, she felt constrained to attract regard for what had happened to her and what could transpire. She posted her story all alone Facebook divider and got the consideration of media, for example, CBC, Radio-Canada, CTV and even in the Toronto Sun.

Still Doucet felt nothing was occurring, even subsequent to sending an enrolled grievance letter to Evenko, the organization behind Osheaga, with the assistance of an attorney giving their time. The head of security of the CH Group, which claims Evenko and other occasion organizations holding celebrations in Montreal like Spectra, called her yet she said he couldn't guarantee any change.

A representative for Evenko told the CBC a year ago that the organization would explore the occurrence, and that it considers the security of celebration goes important.

Doucet wasn't persuaded that the celebration coordinators were attempting to keep any future ambushes. So she took matters into her own hands.

"I concluded that I would do an appeal to get more open consideration on the issue and ideally stand out enough to be noticed on the grounds that they're the one conceding the occasion licenses," Doucet said. "From that point, since I labeled the chairman (of Montreal on change.org) and the individual in charge of celebrations and a couple of other city authorities, I get it stood out enough to be noticed."

Mélanie Doucet, Osheaga, celebration, wellbeing

Mélanie Doucet's drink was spiked with a date-assault medication and she passed out amid a celebration, she says. Picture gone up against July 5, 2017 in Montreal. Photograph by Clothilde Goujard

After fourteen days, in November 2016, the city of Montreal ordered the Conseil des Montréalaises, a counseling body inside the region concentrated on ladies' issues, to explore ladies' wellbeing at open air occasions in Montreal.

The Conseil des Montréalaises was made 13 years prior amid a summit in Montreal because of requires the city to accomplish more to coordinate ladies' issues and worries into its choices and approaches.

The Conseil offers the city exhortation upon ask for, and can likewise make suggestions all alone when it sees issues that should be tended to.

"The Conseil is somewhat similar to an extension between the gatherings of ladies and the city," said Cathy Wong, leader of the Conseil des Montréalaises. "We are here to speak to the voices of these gatherings who disclose to us consistently about their stresses, their requests, and the difficulties they confront."

Following five years working for the Conseil, Wong has figured out how to explore the city's administration to propose arrangements that can affect the every day lives of ladies in Montreal. That implies taking a shot at points, for example, work-life adjust issues for ladies required in nearby legislative issues, the encounters of vagrants, sports exercises offered to young ladies, proficient difficulties for ladies industrial laborers, and wellbeing for ladies all of ages out in the open spaces.

Cathy Wong, Conseil des Montréalaises, Montréal

Cathy Wong tunes in to an introduction about ladies' security at outside occasions in Montreal on June 22, 2017. Photograph by Clothilde Goujard.

Montreal ladies have been attempting to make the city more secure since the mid 1990s

Chipping away at making Montreal more secure for ladies is just the same old thing new. For as long as 30 years, ladies activists have pushed to adjust the city's lanes, structures, travel, lighting, fields and extensive occasions to ladies' needs.

They composed exploratory strolls as one of their first exercises. These comprised of getting a gathering of individuals together for a stroll in a particular neighborhood, close to a metro station or a recreation center, and after that observing environment and potential dangers and talking about how to address them. For instance, in the event that they saw that a specific road corner was dim during the evening, they could prescribe adding more light presents on illuminate the territory.

Rita Rachel Dandavino taken an interest in one of the main strolls, in the mid 1990s.

"We were a little gathering of youthful expert ladies who might meet for lunch to talk (about urbanism issues). We did this initially practice on Mont Royal to see the requirements individuals may have. We'd requested that a police lady accompanied us since we needed to do the stroll amid the night and would not like to go alone like that," she said.

Dandavino later turned into the facilitator of the Metropolis Women International Network, a gathering that unites city authorities from around the globe who share best practices. She said that advance to make urban areas more secure for ladies is moderate, however that their objectives are inside reach.

"The issue (of ladies' security in the city) is better known today, while some time recently, individuals imagined it didn't exist," said Dandavino, who has two youngsters in their twenties. "In any case, it's as yet something we need to give careful consideration to. We shouldn't believe there's nothing else to do."

Manon Gauthier, an individual from Mayor Coderre's official panel for culture, legacy, outline, and the status for ladies, said it was vital for the city to seek after these endeavors.

"Ladies do encounter the city uniquely in contrast to men and it's inside that point of view that Montreal has focused on making a social setting where ladies can completely profit by life in their own city," she clarified.

"We know additionally that security contemplations were dependably at the bleeding edge of our contract of rights and duties."

One of Montreal's principle security strategies for ladies was a travel activity presented in 1996, which gives ladies a chance to get off city transports between stops around evening time. The city additionally presented a guide for safe urban arranging that it consistently updates to advise and instruct partners about accepted procedures for occasions and urban advancement.

The guide covers various issues and prescribes safeguards that individuals need to go out on a limb when they are at hazard or in risk.

While Montreal has been endeavoring to grow new security arrangements for ladies for as far back as 30 years, Gauthier additionally remembers it can be moderate. In 2016, Montreal positioned eleventh for its security for ladies out of the 25 greatest Canadian urban communities as indicated by the Canadian Center for Policy Alternatives.

"It requires investment and change and comprehension. Montreal includes 52 for every penny of ladies. You have to instruct individuals in that regard... Building trust is essential and it's tied in with teaching the populace as well as instructing the principle accomplices which additionally implies a change of culture at the Service de Police de la Ville de Montreal, firefighters administrations."

